the development of the mythological school of european biblical criticism taken from individually written works over the course of four years the fury and the fall is a representation of the destruction and overcoming of the socially conditioned self in order to begin creating a self defined individual hector nevarko writes in a visceral sardonic voice tinged with turmoil and black humour delivered in a mixture of irreverent off beat staccato balanced by almost whispered confessions of regret frustration and desire providing an alphabetical listing of sexual language and locution in 16th and 17th century english this book draws especially on the more immediate literary modes the theatre broadside ballads newsbooks and pamphlets the aim is to assist the reader of shakespearean and stuart literature to identify metaphors and elucidate meanings and more broadly to chart through illustrative quotation shifting and recurrent linguistic patterns linguistic habit is closely bound up with the ideas and assumptions of a period and the figurative language of sexuality across this period is highly illuminating of socio cultural change as well as linguistic development thus the entries offer as much to those concerned with social history and the history of ideas as to the reader of shakespeare or dryden
